INVESTIGATOR FOR BUREAU OF INTERNAL REVENUE GOES ON STAND AT FLEMINGTON; HELPED TO PUT CAPONE BEHIND THE BARS

Frank J. Wilson Tells How He Was Called Into Lindbergh Case on March 13, 1932 — Studied Ransom Notes and Symbols—Supervised Bundling of Ransom Money

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN

(International News Service Staff Correspondent)

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Jan. 11.—Bruno Richard Hauptmann was the writer of the Lindbergh ransom notes in the opinion of Albert Osborne of New York, noted handwriting expert, as expressed from the witness stand at the Hauptmann murder trial. Osborne testified he had studied specimens of Hauptmann's penmanship and also the writing of the ransom notes. His study was so close and exhaustive, he felt he could form a definite conclusion.

COURT ROOM, FLEMINGTON, N. J., Jan. 11.—Frank J. Wilson, star investigator for the United States Bureau of Internal Revenue, took the stand as the first witness today at the trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, for the murder of the kidnapped Lindbergh baby.

Wilson played an important role in putting Al Capone behind the bars.

Wilson went to the stand at 10.05 a. m., one minute after the session was called to order.

Justice Thomas W. Trenchard had arrived in the court room quite early and ascended the bench a few minutes after 10 o'clock.

Wilson was questioned by Attorney General David T. Wilentz:

Q. Mr. Wilson, have you an official position in the United States government?

A. Special agent in charge of intelligence department of the Department of Internal Revenue.

Q. Were you assigned by the United State government to the Lindbergh case?

A. About March 13, 1932.

Wilson testified he was called to Hopewell, N. J., on the night of March 13, 1932.

"Did you at that time study the ransom notes and symbols on them?" Wilentz asked.

"Yes." The witness, after saying he had received full co-operation from Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and the New Jersey State Police, told how he supervised the making up of the $70,000 ransom bundles. He revealed for the first time that the ransom money was made up twice.

"The first time the money was made up the serial numbers of the bills were not taken down," he said. "I supervised the making up of the second batch of ransom bills, which were United States gold notes, then available."

Wilson testified the ransom was made up in two lots; one bundle containing $50,000 which was paid to the kidnapper at St. Raymond's Cemetery. The other package contained an additional $20,000. The kidnapper's original demand was for $70,000.

Wilentz asked:

"Then on April 4th, two days after, did you hold a conference with Colonel Lindbergh?"

"Yes," Wilson replied. "At that time Colonel Lindbergh requested that the United States Treasury Department trace these bills. As a result of the Colonel's letter that he wrote that day, circulars were sent to banks, and post offices in this and foreign countries listing the serial numbers of the bills. These circulars were printed in four foreign languages."

Wilson said 50,000 circulars were sent out at one time and 200,000 at another.

Death Comes Suddenly For R. Floyd Ghannt

A military funeral is to be conducted on Monday for Raideff Floyd Ghannt, who died suddenly at his West Bristol home this morning. Although in ill health for a time, death came suddenly for the 45-year old World War veteran, during an attack of convulsions.

The West Bristol man is survived by his wife, Edith Lister Ghannt; and six children, Hazel, Lorraine, Nancy, Francis, Robert and Floyd, Jr.

For 18 years he was affiliated with the Quartermasters' Department of the Marine Corps, having recently retired. Previous to this service he was in the United States Army, and served his country during the World War. He was a member of Joseph A. Schumacher Post, 1597, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

A military funeral will be conducted on Monday from the funeral home of the H. S. Rue Estate, 314 Cedar street, at two p. m., by the Schumacher Post. The Rev. Andrew G. Solla, chaplain of the post, and pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Our Saviour, will conduct the funeral service. Burial will be made in Bristol Cemetery. Friends may call at the Rue Estate funeral home on Sunday evening.

FIRST FOUR DAYS OF JULY SAW FOUR SUDDEN DEATHS IN THIS AREA; ONE KILLED BY AUTO, TWO DROWNED, THIRD DIED AT WHEEL OF CAR

Clothes-Draped Skeleton of a Man Was Found in Wooded Section Near Falls Township—Michael Maggio, Wanted in Connection With the Murder of His Wife and Son, Gave Himself Up to the Authorities

One man was killed in an automobile accident and another drowned in the Delaware River on the first of July, last year. The main news for that day and the succeeding 30 days of July, follows in brief paragraphs:

1st—A Morrisville man, John P. Olson, 22, was instantly killed and five injured in an automobile accident near Lakehurst, N. J.

While swimming in the Delaware River at Torresdale Manor, Michael Sensky, 39, Philadelphia, was drowned.

2nd—It was announced that Langhorne Manor Borough had been served notice that it must open its old one-story school house on Hulmeville avenue, for the teaching of pupils in grades one to four. The school had been closed for many years. The reopening was made necessary because Langhorne-Middletown school needed more room for high school students.

Farm hands using a garden hose, and a bucket brigade, kept a fire under control at the farm of J. C. Effinger, Penns Manor, until arrival of Morrisville firemen.

Mrs. Lincoln G. Line, 71, of South Langhorne, died at the wheel of her automobile after she stopped in that borough to purchase gasoline.

3rd—It was announced that playgrounds for children would be opened at Morrisville on July 9th, same to be continued until September 1st, under auspices of Parent-Teacher Association.

4th—A clothes-draped skeleton of a man, about 50 years of age, his head severed, was discovered in a wooded section near Falls Township. The grim find was made by Otto Rauch, Philadelphia, who was visiting friends in that section and had gone for a stroll.

A holiday tragedy occurred when Emil Dooze, 32, of Philadelphia, slipped off the Eddington dock and drowned in the Delaware River. He had just arrived for a picnic, and his wife was nearby when the fatal accident occurred. The body was not recovered for 2½ hours.

5th—A week's search for Michael Maggio, wanted for the murder of his second wife and his son, ended, when he walked into the office of the Camden County prosecutor, and surrendered. Mrs. Maggio was a former Bristol woman.

A garage and small barn on the property of King Farms Company were destroyed by fire.

6th—A Croydon man, Joseph Cameron, 27, was killed, and a Philadelphia man hurt, when their automobile crashed into a pole near the Turners' Country Club.

Two pairs of brothers of Philadelphia and Bucks County, accused of three auto thefts, were committed to the Bucks County Jail in default of $500 bail each.

Robert Patterson, 23, Eddington, was found lifeless, in the roadway at Eddington. The body was discovered by a young boy, Stanley Slesinski.

Officers were called to drag the Delaware River at Morrisville, in an effort to find the body of Edward Miller, 19, Oxford Valley, who slipped from the grasp of friends who endeavored to save him. The body was found the following day.

7th—Members of the board of Bucks County Re-Employment Service received word that "as a matter of economy" the county office would be merged with the Tri-County Board, with office at Easton.

8th—Three hundred graduates from practically every state in the union attended the 34th annual reunion and grad-homecoming of National Farm School, Doylestown.

9th—The Bucks County Jail, according to an announcement, ranked high in the list of Pennsylvania jails, in providing of medical, vocational and recreational facilities for both men and women inmates.

Morrisville borough council voted to instruct the borough solicitor to proceed at once against the Pennsylvania and New Jersey Railway Company for the collection of more than $800 due the borough from the cost of the canal bridge at Pennsylvania avenue and Union street, Morrisville.

At the annual business meeting of Bristol W. C. T. U., Mrs. Harry Headley was named president.

The Delaware River was becoming more active as far as craft was concerned. Passage of sea-going vessels through the river, enroute to Trenton, N. J., was increasing.

11th—Agents of the State Liquor Control Board "cracked down" on Bristol, and mopped things up generally. They were assisted by Bristol police. Two arrests were made, three other places visited and plans made to arrest the proprietors.

12th—Three Philadelphians were held under bail for court as the result of a raid staged on a Polish picnic conducted at Andalusia Park, near Torresdale.

Seventeen boys and girls had their tonsils removed at the Harriman Hospital, when the annual tonsil clinic occurred. Local surgeons and nurses gave of their time and skill.

A house on the property of Camp Lincoln, owned by the Big Brothers Association of Philadelphia, located in Bensalem Township, was razed by fire. Loss on building and contents was placed at about $7,000.

CORONER SWEENEY HEADS KIWANIS CLUB

Officially Installed at Meeting of Doylestown Organization

MUCH POMP USED IN MUTUAL AID HALL

DOYLESTOWN, Jan. 11.—Dr. John J. Sweeney, Coroner of Bucks County, was installed as president of the Kiwanis Club of Doylestown for 1935, at the weekly dinner meeting of the club at the Doylestown Inn.

With all the pomp and ceremony of a "Washington inaugural," Dr. Sweeney was officially installed by Past President Mark Thatcher, of the Sellersville Kiwanis Club. Dr. Sweeney's associate officers, also installed by Thatcher, were as follows:

Vice President, Assistant District Attorney Edward G. Biester; treasurer, Edward O. Steely; secretary, A. Russell Thomas; directors, Walter Bachmann, Dr. George R. Cressman, Sheriff Horace E. Gwiner, Harry W. Kelly, Charles Mamounis, William West and George E. LeWorthy.

The retiring president, Joseph F. Hadler, who was presented with the Past President's emblem, presented the gavel to President Sweeney, and then delivered his "farewell" message as president of the club during 1934. Dr. Sweeney was presented with the President's button by Kiwanis Thatcher.

"I do not want to step out of office with the idea that I am relieved of duty," declared the retiring president Hadler, whose year has been outstanding in Kiwanis. "I will pledge my support to the new board of officers and continue to be greatly interested in Kiwanis. Kiwanis has done me a lot of good personally and I cannot express in words my appreciation of the co-operation of our club secretary, other officers and all the members during 1934."

Past President Hadler also praised the efficient work of Kiwanian Ed Steely, treasurer of the club, whose excellent report was considered a

LOCAL FOLKS TO PRODUCE COMEDY TO AID CADETS

"Crazy Politics" is Title of Play To Be Given Here

ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY PROMINENT LOCAL PEOPLE WILL BE SELECTED FOR THEIR ABILITY TO ACT, SING AND DANCE, TO TAKE PART IN THE PLAY.

On Thursday and Friday, January 24th and 25th, the screamingly funny stage comedy, "Crazy Politics" will be presented in the Italian Mutual Aid Hall, here, for the benefit of the Legion Cadet, Drum and Bugle Corps, under the auspices of the Cadet Boosters Association.

One hundred and fifty prominent local people will be selected for their ability to act, sing and dance, to take part in the play.

"Crazy Politics" is a comedy myth built on a political situation in a small town. The scene of the show is laid in the People's Party Headquarters, in the city of Centerville. In order to drive out racketeers and gangsters, the People's Party nominates a woman candidate for mayor. To run a dignified campaign the woman does not show up and a newspaper reporter is forced to masquerade in her place. Four other prominent men masquerade as his secretary, nurse and child, then the fun begins.

A large group of professional and business men will perform in the "Caucus" scene. 30 attractive high school girls will perform eleven song and dance numbers. Also a number of prominent women singers will feature in the "Syncopeated Rally" showing how women will rule the town.

"Crazy Politics" is one of the most sensational plays ever produced here. Everyone is all enthused about it, says the promoters. The director, Miss Sylvia Greenberg, is now here arranging for the production.

CONTINUE WILNO CASE AWAITING ANALYSIS

Attorneys for Restaurant Proprietor Endeavor to Have Their Client Discharged

ILLEGAL POSSESSION

Trial of John Wilno, 814 Wood street, charged with illegal possession of alleged alcohol was continued last night until Thursday evening, January 17th, at eight o'clock. Continuation was due to the fact that analysis of the beverage taken from the Wilno premises had not as yet arrived from the chemist.

Wilno appeared before Justice of Peace James Guy in Municipal Court. The court room was packed with those apparently eager to learn the outcome Wilno was represented by John P. Betz, Jr., and J. Leslie Kilcoyne, attorneys. Both Betz and Kilcoyne asked that their client be discharged when State Liquor Control Board agents told Justice Guy that they were unable to produce the analysis at the hearing.

Wilno's place was visited by the State agents on January 4th, and they testified that they found approximately three quarts of alleged alcohol in the place. About a half pint of it is said to have been behind the bar in the Wilno restaurant and the balance of it in a kitchen closet.

The State contends that Wilno had in his possession alcohol acquired after January 1, 1934, which was not purchased from a State Liquor Store.

Trainloads of Saarlanders Begin Arriving in Homeland

SAARBRUECKEN, Saar Territory, Jan. 11.—(INS)—Trainloads of former Saarlanders, expected to total more than 50,000, began rolling into Saarbruecken today to swell the Hitler vote on Sunday's plebiscite.

Disregarding orders of the Saar governing commission and pleas of their own leaders, scores of members of the German front gave the new arrivals rousing welcomes at the station.

Smaller groups who favor retention of League of Nations rule, irate at continued Nazi demonstrations, shouted at the returning voters from side streets, causing some minor scuffles.

More active interference on the part of the league partisans was threatened by their chief, Max Braun, who charges that Saar and international police had not stemmed alleged Nazi terrorism. He warned that his unit front would stage a mass demonstration if the Nazi shows are not halted.

Open warfare, some observers said, would break out were it not for the presence of 3500 foreign troops. They repeatedly march through the streets, parade their tanks and armored cars, and otherwise grimly warn the voters that order must be preserved.

TO USE SCHOOL BLD'G. FOR RELIEF AND LWD OFFICES IN BRISTOL

School Board Grants State Privilege to Use Wood Street Building

TO MAKE ALTERATIONS

Work Expected To Start At Once and Rushed to Completion

The Bristol School Board and the Emergency Relief Board of the State of Pennsylvania have entered into an agreement whereby the latter will be granted the privilege of using the old Wood street school building for the purposes of the Emergency Relief Board Work. The building has not been used for school purposes for sometime.

The building is to be occupied by the Local Works Division and the district office of the Relief Area No. 16. Both floors of the building will be occupied after alterations have been completed. It is expected that the project will be approved in Harrisburg today, and work will get underway immediately. The agreement for the use of the building covers a period of two years and is given to the Emergency Relief Board free of rental.

Plans have been drawn for the changing of a number of partitions, and other minor alterations, which it is estimated will cost approximately $3,000. These will be done at the cost of the state.

With the completion of the alterations all of the offices of the Local Works Division as well as the district office of the relief area will be moved from the municipal building into the new quarters.

Effective last Monday the Relief Administration of Bucks County and that of Montgomery County were merged, and the new area designated as Relief Area No. 16. Miss Janice Moore, present executive director of Montgomery Relief Board, was placed in charge of relief administration in the newly created area. Her headquarters are in Norristown, and district offices for Bucks County have been designated in Bristol, Doylestown and Langhorne.

Fog Keeps Many Fruit Growers From Meeting

DOYLESTOWN, Jan. 11.—Because of the fog, only about 20 stout-hearted fruit growers ventured out Wednesday night for one of the finest practical talks on "Disease Problems in Our Orchards" at the annual meeting of the Bucks County Fruit Growers' Association, held in the Administration Building, here.

As president, Robert Atkinson, of Wrightstown, conducted the election of officers which resulted as follows: President, Thomas Marshall, of New Hope; secretary-treasurer, Charles F. Kindred, of Ivyland. Past President Atkinson who presented the treasurer's report of the late S. B. Monosmith, of Weiser, stated there was a balance of $27.94 in the treasury. Walter Bishop, of Doylestown township, in the absence of Mr. Marshall, who was the secretary for the association last year served in that capacity.

Dr. R. S. Kirby, of State College, speaking on the spraying of trees with reference to insects and disease, told apple growers that perfect spraying is putting on a thin coat of spray on all the sides of an apple.

"Looking at the spraying problem not from a disease angle alone, but what will give us our biggest return? In an apple tree where is the most disease problem?" asked Dr. Kirby.

He pointed out that a factor which encourages most disease is wet weather. The problem of disease is where the trees dry the slowest and that is in the center.

A frequent Waterloo of fruit growers, the speaker insisted, is falling down on the job when it comes to spraying the inside of the tree. A method he offered was to go into the middle of the tree and spray from the inside out. He cautioned his hearers about throwing on a tree a strong stream from the outside. "Get into the middle of the tree and throw it up through the top of the tree. The inside is the hardest to spray because the leaves are turned outward," he said.

By means of a chart, Dr. Kirby showed that where all the sprays were put on trees, scab was 71%; delayed dormant spray omitted, 5.2%; pre-pink spray omitted, 4.5%; pink spray omitted, 4%; petal fall spray omitted, 3%; first Summer's spray omitted, 4%; second Summer, 4%; and third Summer, 12%.

Spraying is a matter of dollars and cents, and not only disease prevention, the speaker pointed out.

A film on timely fruit work in Pennsylvania was shown.

The card party which will be held by the Mothers' and Fathers' Associations in the high school this evening will attract many patrons, it is predicted. There are many prizes for those who are successful in the various card games.

STANDARDS OF VALUE

There are three measurements that have greatest influence upon the affairs of human life: Measurement of time, of mass and extension, and of value. Two of these are safeguarded by scientific accuracy and guarantees of law and government.

One may indulge in a flight of fancy to conjecture what would happen if time were not standardized and everybody and everything operated on its own time. Trains would not make connections, ships would lose their reckoning, appointments would be useless and chaos would reign in all business and industry. Society is organized on a standard time.

Suppose the standards of measure and of weight were subject to periodic change without notice instead of being guarded with infinite care by science and government. Deeds would be worthless, a ton of coal might be the equivalent of two tons today and a half-ton tomorrow, commerce could no longer conduct on a basis of pounds, tons, quarts and bushels. The standards of weight and measure must be kept absolutely unvarying.

Science and society have ordered unflinching standards of time, weight and measure but the standard of values is left to run at loose ends and to be as unreliable as a worn-out clock. This is called an age of organization and order, yet the possessor of a fortune today may see it dwindle to a pittance tomorrow. Land worth millions today can be made temporarily worthless almost overnight. There is a money standard but it doesn't prevent the dollar from buying twice as much today as it did in 1929.

There is nothing impractical or visionary in dreaming of an unchanging standard of value. Nothing would bring to society greater assurance of progress, safety and stability.

HUSTLE AND BUSTLE

A hotel restaurant in fantastic New York now is advertising a Swim and Lunch, all for 85 cents, which illustrates, we suppose, what the psychologists mean when they speak of the dangers to health in the increasing complexity of modern life.

In a way the innovation may be set down as a variation on the practice of high-pressure businessmen who have lunches sent in for themselves and their stenographers, thus combining dictation and digestion, with probable ill results on both.

Yet lunch does go well with a swim, if the two are not taken simultaneously, and we see no reason why, assuming the tad is developed with discretion, time-savers of this sort should not be viewed with tolerance. A Shoeshine and Cocktail combination probably would appeal to the bibulous but hurried man-about-town, and we can find no more serious argument against the offer of Breakfast, Shave, Manicure and Your Fortune Told, all for 85 cents, if it must come to that.

Courage: The spiritual result of good health, a clear conscience and a pocket full of jack.

Alas! By the time your teeth demand attention, you no longer have enough vanity to keep up your courage.

TEASED COUNSEL

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 11—Explaining he had deliberately spent his first day under cross examination "teasing the defense counsel for Hauptmann," Dr. John F. (Jafse) Condon in an exclusive interview today declared he had waited until the second day before "putting the finishing touches to of Reiley." Apparently needing no rest whatever after his two days under fire in Flemington, Jafse lounged about his hotel suite here with his immediate family, telling all that he had simply been the leading character in a play drama which might have been figuratively entitled "The Tormentor and the Brooklyn Bull." All during the first day of cross examination, Dr. Condon said, "I was content to let Reiley work himself into a lather, but yesterday, when I started out for the Court Room, I reminded myself this was not a personal feud, understand that it really could not be, because he is no match for me—but that a man was on trial for the most heinous murder ever committed. It was then I decided, like the cat who has been playing with a mouse, that I had had my cake and that it was not time to eat it. Why, he didn't even give me a work-out."

DESSERT PARTY

The W. C. T. U. meeting to be held on Tuesday evening next at the home of Mrs. George Ardrey, 623 Radcliffe street, will start with a dessert party, to be followed by a short business session and program. This will include music, and a lesson in citizenship conducted by Mrs. Ardrey. Each one attending is asked to take a friend.

"THE LADY DANCES" by MARGE STANLEY

SYNOPSIS

Tired of the smugness and restrictions of civilization, Mark Talbot books passage on the S.S. "Orient" hoping to find the adventure he craves in travel. His brother, John, pleads in vain with him to remain home and settle down. At the dock, Mark's attention is drawn to an attractive girl who stares at him in a hostile way. Next day, Mark goes from deck to deck in search of her. He finds the girl in the staterage, the same expression of helpless rebellion against something or someone on her face. Mark learns from the captain that her name is Vanya Prokova and that she is being deported from San Francisco to Honolulu.

CHAPTER III

SCRAPING ACQUAINTANCES
Mark smiled as he found the deck-chair to his right occupied by an elderly bearded gentleman whom he recognized as Professor MacQuane, one of the passengers placed at Mark's table. There was no sign of the blonde seeker after knowledge nor her mother. The Professor barely glanced up from his book to answer Mark's greeting; he had been a silent table companion too, Mark recalled.

The following day had found him a little lured by the daily routine of the voyage. He emerged on deck to find that the wispy clouds of the preceding evening had massed themselves into billowy white sky-islands that checked the deep blue of the heavens. The sun shone intermittently between them as they scudded eastward toward America, already nearly two thousand miles astern. The wind had freshened out of the southwest, and the ocean of the peaceful name seemed bent on disproving its cognomen.

Mark managed a glimpse of the book in his neighbor's hand. It looked like—it was indeed!—the General Theory of Relativity by Albert Einstein! Mark sighed, and gave up all hopes of any conversation at that quarter. He stared out at the heaving expanse of threatening green water, and noted that the ship had developed a perceptible pitch.

"In for a little heavy weather," he thought, with a tinge of hopefulness. Mark was a good sailor, and the prospect of an unsteady deck bothered him not at all. He looked forward to it with some anticipation; at the least, a storm might relieve the monotony of shipboard routine.

Ten more minutes of silence, and he was lonely enough even to tackle the Professor.

"Professor MacQuane," he ventured, "is it possible to explain Einstein's Theory of Relativity to an interested layman? One reads so much about it nowadays, you know; I'd like to get the gist of it if possible—just the general idea in a nutshell."

The Professor turned a pair of bespectacled and chilly eyes on Mark. In deep lecture-hall tones, emphasizing each syllable with wagging finger and beard, he enunciated slowly:

"Said a mathematician named Black, 'Oh, Einstein! Alas and alack! If I go out tonight, I'll bump into myself coming back!'"

The finger and beard ceased wagging, and the Professor returned serenely to his perusal of the volume.

"Wow!" thought Mark, recovering from his astonishment. "That chair must be hexed! First a talkative lady who thinks in exclamation points, and then a silent gentleman who thinks in limericks!"

He rose and went below. Under the door of his stateroom was a radiogram folded neatly into a yellow envelope. He tore it open, and smiled as he read it. From his mother—a good scout! Of course—John would just have arrived in Spring Brook from his fruitless journey to the coast, with the news of Mark's determination. It was nice of his mother to take the decision gracefully, and wire her love and faith in him.

At that moment Spring Brook didn't seem so objectionable. Dull, perhaps, and informally quiet and hide-bound, but so, apparently, was even a great liner in mid-Pacific. Perhaps the whole world had settled into a rut of drab routine; perhaps the world had spent all its adventurous energy in the War. For the first time Mark felt some qualms as to the wisdom of his decision. He sat down in his stateroom and composed an affectionate message to his mother.

No, he decided, as he carried the slip of paper to the radio-room, there must be romance left somewhere on the expansive face of the world. Out over the horizon were strange volcanic islands, and palm-covered coral atolls, and beyond these the eternal mystery of Asia, the oriental world. He was a fool, he told himself, to give way to home-sickness on the third day

There she was. Again seated on a wall bench, but in the far corner this time. Her unhappy face seemed pale in the glow of the electric lights. She was simply sitting impassively, leaning back into the corner of the wall.

Mark was at a loss as to how to approach her. However, lack of self-assurance was not one of his distinguishing characteristics. He moved across the floor toward her, while a hum of conversation in outlandish tongues rose about him. He paused before her.

"Miss—" he began. What the devil was her last name? "Miss—Miss Vanya, I hope you'll pardon me. I wanted to talk to you."

The girl shifted her dusky eyes to his face. She stared at him with

"Miss—Miss Vanya, I hope you'll pardon me. I wanted to talk to you."

away from San Francisco! Nevertheless, he sent the message.

Leaving the radio-room, he thought himself of the elusive black-haired lady of the staterage. Immediately his nostalgia vanished; the uncertain weather, which doubtless affects human beings, in spite of themselves, just as it does dogs and birds and domestic creatures, ceased suddenly to weigh upon him, as if the sun had emerged startlingly into a cloudless sky.

"Vanya!" he murmured to himself. "Vanya something-or-other. Pretty name—Vanya."

He was unconsciously directing his steps down the companionway toward the staterage. Without really intending it, he suddenly found himself well on his way below.

"Might as well drop in on her," he told himself. "She looks as if she had some kind of story about her. I'll never find it out unless I talk to her."

He moved toward the large room given over to staterage passengers. "Wonder if she understands English," he speculated. "Perhaps we can get by in French."

At the entrance he wrinkled his nose at the close smell of humanity. "Unwashed humanity, at that," he thought. "Enough to make one seasick!"

Indeed, the pitching of the ship was beginning to be noticeable here below. Mark didn't doubt that dinner would find more than one resident of the upper decks absent.

He glanced around. Fewer people visible than yesterday; beyond question, some of the groups were already indisposed.

unaltered expression, and without a word.

"Perhaps—" Mark floundered. "I mean—perhaps you don't speak English?"

"Perfectly," said the other in a low tone, and relapsed into her frigid silence.

"It's just that you seemed lonely—some down here," continued Mark, "and I was feeling a little lonely myself. So I thought—" He paused. The girl made no effort to ease his way; she sat staring at him with no slightest hint of friendliness in her features.

"Well, you needn't take it as an insult!" snapped Mark suddenly. "I meant it as a compliment. I merely wanted to ask if there were anything I could do for you!"

"Yes," replied the girl coolly. "Yes, there is. You can leave. That will be a great service to me. I assure you. I couldn't impose on you to any greater extent."

She leaned back into her corner and closed her eyes. Mark was struck again by her pallor. He stood for a moment irresolute, then turned and walked disgustedly across the floor and out of the doorway.

"I've had fine luck picking friends on this boat!" he grinned ruefully to himself.

At the foot of the companionway, he glanced back through the door at Vanya. She still sat with closed eyes, swaying in her corner to the now vigorous pitching of the liner.

"I think the lady's a trifle seasick," Mark grinned to himself. "Perhaps her normal disposition is somewhat less sour."

Short Cuts to the Dinner Table by Vera A. Schneider

More request recipes for the friends who have been waiting patiently for those that are of particular interest to them.

Butterscotch Pie

2 tablespoonfuls granulated sugar
1 cupful boiling water
1 cupful brown sugar
2 tablespoonfuls butter
2 tablespoonfuls cornstarch
2 eggs
1/2 teaspoonful vanilla

Baked pastry shell.
Caramelize the sugar by putting it into frying pan and stirring over a low heat until it melts and becomes a golden brown. Pour in the boiling water and simmer until the caramelized sugar melts. Then add the brown sugar and thicken with the cornstarch which has been moistened with a little cold water. Add the salt and butter and while still hot pour over the well beaten yolks of eggs. Cool slightly and add vanilla. Turn into baked pastry shell. Make a meringue of the two egg whites by beating them until stiff and adding three tablespoonfuls of sugar. Bake for about 12 minutes in a moderate (325 degree) oven.

Drop Dumplings

2 cupfuls flour
4 teaspoonfuls baking powder
1/2 teaspoonful salt
1 tablespoonful butter
1 1/2 cupfuls milk

Sift together the dry ingredients and blend the shortening, keeping mixture coarse and flaky. Add liquid and drop by heaping teaspoonfuls into the boiling stew, chowder or fruit sauce. Allow 20 minutes having liquid boiling when dumplings are dropped in and keep utensil covered closely.

Devils Food

6 squares chocolate—melted
3 cupfuls flour
2 egg yolks
1 cupful milk
2 cupfuls brown sugar
1 1/2 teaspoonfuls soda, 2 teaspoonfuls vanilla, 1 teaspoonful salt
1/2 cupful butter

White Frosting

1 stiffly beaten egg white
1/2 cupful cream
Powdered sugar—vanilla.

Work powdered sugar into egg white, beating until smooth. Add cream and more sugar and beat until of proper consistency to spread on cake. Add vanilla.

"masterpiece" for efficiency. Incidentally it showed the club entirely out of debt, with money in both the general treasury and the "special fund," and not a single penny owed to the club of forty-three members in dues. Walter Reiff, past president of the Kiwanis Club of Lambertville, and also praised by the retiring president for the service that Kiwanian Reiff donates to the club. Only two meetings were missed by Kiwanian Reiff in 1934.

In his capacity of installing officer with or without authority, Kiwanian Thatcher, struck a few serious notes, but his clever humor made the 1935 inauguration of Kiwanis officers here absolutely unique. He was introduced by Kiwanian William H. Satterthwaite, chairman of the installation committee.

"A Kiwanis Club is one of the biggest assets to any community, and the same is true of other active service clubs," Kiwanian Thatcher declared. "I know personally that here in Doylestown you have a Kiwanis Club that is outstanding throughout the state, a club that for one solid year has an attendance record of 88,121 for 52 meetings in a group of 110 clubs. I know your members personally and the ability of the club officers and you are indeed fortunate."

"With Dr. Sweeney as president in 1935, I look for no let-up in pep and activity. I am glad to see that your new president has interested himself in junior Kiwanis, for I have been informed that to Mr. and Mrs. Sweeney, felicitations are in order over the arrival of Betty Christianna Sweeney. In that capacity, I have been informed that your new president has one on your retiring president, who is one of your club's five bachelors!"

In accepting the oath of office for 1935, Dr. Sweeney declared that he considered the office of president of Kiwanis one of the outstanding honors of his life.

"The course of events of the past few months assure me that during 1935 I will be kept busy at two places, at Kiwanis meetings and at home," Dr. Sweeney said. "I want to thank the members of the club for electing me president and I assure you that I will strive to carry on the fine work accomplished by 'Joe' Hafler and his officers and members."

"Personally, I am of the opinion that no other Kiwanis Club in Pennsylvania can surpass the actual member-interest and project-completion of the Doylestown club. This year I have appointed committee chairmen whom I believe are best fitted for the type of program and year that I anticipate. I want to make the programs of 1935 so interesting that a member will be sorry to miss a meeting."

"My two objectives which will be my platform, will be the underprivileged child and attendance at Kiwanis meetings." If I receive the support that retiring President 'Joe' received, I'll be successful."

Charles S. Kratz, of Hartsville, under the classification of manager, Federal Re-employment Service (Doylestown office), was welcomed by retiring President Hafler as a new member of the club.

Treasurer Steady's report showed expenditures in 1934 amounting to $1404.43, and receipts amounting to $1441.92, leaving a balance in the general fund of $37.49. In the Kiwanis "Special Fund" for underprivileged child and community service work, the expenditures amounted to $118.05 in 1934 leaving a balance of $300.36.

Kiwanians Vanartsdalen, Roberts and Kelly were appointed members of an auditing committee by President Sweeney.

A letter of appreciation from the boys and girls of Tabor Home for Children, written by Sister Lent, thanking Kiwanis for the fine Christmas party was read by Secretary "Russ" Thomas.

President Sweeney's committee appointments for 1935 are as follows: Agriculture: Claude Myers, Abram Kriebel, Elissa J. Baker and George E. LeWorthy.

Attendance and Food with: Walter Bachmann, Calvin Roberts and Charles Horner.

Finance: Ed Steely, Oscar Martin, William Fretz, Ira Shaw.

Underprivileged Child: Charles Mamounis, Edward Biester, Dr. George R. Cressman.

Laws and Regulations: Judge Hiram H. Keller, Judge Calvin S. Boyer, Cletus L. Goodling.

Membership and Classification: George Lentor, Frank Mitch, Jr., Matthew Godshall.

Publicity: Russ Thomas, Isaac J. Vanartsdalen, Walter Fretz.

Program: Bill Tell and Bill West (co-chairmen), and all other committee chairmen.

Francis Lederer Haired In A Fine Saucy Film

Francis Lederer, one of the handsomest and most talented of our recent acting importations, finally has the opportunity to display his actual acting talent in Paramount's "The Pursuit of Happiness," the adaptation of the Broadway handling hit, which stars him and features Joan Bennett, Charlie Ruggles and Mary Boland. It will be shown again at the Grand Theatre tonight.

He is cast as the charming Hessian soldier who deserts the British ranks because the colonists promise him "the pursuit of happiness."

With Hissome Joan Bennett cast as the pretty Puritan and the object of his affections, Lederer goes through his courtship and his first amazed initiation to the custom of "bundling," or courting the lady in bed fully clothed, with such obvious pleasure and freshness that the first night audience roared its pleasure at his performance.

WOMAN NOT MYSTERY

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 11.—The "mystery woman in green" who confronted Dr. John F. Condon while he was on the witness stand, is no mystery to the prosecution, it was disclosed today, according to a reliable spokesman. She is a former companion of a Mrs. Bush now "in an institution" who, with Mrs. Bush, pestered Dr. Condon for a whole day shortly after his part in the Lindbergh ransom negotiations were revealed, in April 1932. It was stated Dr. Condon's son-in-law, Ralph Hacker is prepared to testify that the "mystery woman," Mrs. Harmina Koren, and Mrs. Bush were handed letters by himself, letter which purported to contain samples of the handwriting of the ransom note writer.

CANS OF 27 SIZES CONTAIN THE FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

By Rhandena A. Armstrong
(Home Economics Representative)

There are cans and cans! "Four cans for 25 cents," or "three medium cans for 20 cents," or "Special, 6 cans for 23 cents" may be good buys but you cannot tell until you know how much each can contains. Cans are of many shapes and at least 27 different sizes.

Common sizes of cans for family use are No. 2 for vegetables, holding about 20 ounces, making 4 or 5 servings, and No. 2½ for fruits, holding 28 ounces or over, making 5 to 7 servings.

Smaller sizes are the No. 1 or picnic size, holding about 10 ounces, or 2 average servings; the No. 1 tall can, holding 16 ounces or 3 or 4 servings. Notice the difference between No. 1 and No. 1 tall.

If you buy vegetables in No. 2 cans you probably pay 2 to 4 cents less per pound than if you buy the same food in No. 1, or picnic cans. If you buy fruits in No. 2½ cans you probably get 3 or 4 cents less per pound than if these same fruits are in No. 1 cans.

And there is another size of can. Watch this one. It looks so much like No. 2 that your eye can hardly tell the difference when they are side by side. This can is a trifle shorter (an eighth of an inch) and a little less in diameter (a quarter of an inch). But it holds 3 or 4 ounces less than No. 2, is often advertised at the same price, and may actually sell for more if you are not on guard. This can is known to the trade as No. 303. It is labeled correctly—16 ounces net weight, or about the same as a No. 1 tall can. But you may take No. 303 for No. 2 unless you read the label.

If you buy three No. 2 cans of tomatoes for 20 cents you pay 5.6 cents per pound. But if they turn out to be No. 303 cans, at the same price for three, you pay 6.6 cents per pound, and you have 9 ounces less for your 20 cents than you get in three No. 2 cans. If you were buying corn, which is heavier than tomatoes, you would get 12 ounces less for your 20 cents. Always read the label on canned or packaged goods and watch the price.

BENEFIT CONCERT FOR DUMB ANIMALS ATTRACTS NOTABLES

By Nadia De Beaud
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

PARIS — (INS) — A benefit concert for the society for the protection of animals, given at the Theatre des Champs Elysees, had as its principal attraction the colored contralto, Marion Anderson, who is to make a concert tour in America.

Among the people I noticed in the audience were Mr. and Mrs. Pitts Duffield, the latter all in black velvet; Miss Mary Walker, one of the Metropolitan Opera Company, whose white hair attracted general attention by its beauty. She wore a black gown with an almond green lame coat.

Madame Ganna Walska had her usual two boxes filled with guests. She wore a floating black gown entirely plisse, with a hip length green velvet cape.

Quite a number of the women had gowns with trains, which they had trouble in handling through the crowd.

DARK GREEN VELVET USED BY PRINCESS FOR BECOMING GOWN

By Nadia de Beaud
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

PARIS — (INS) — Princess Bibesco was at a dinner recently at the Hotel Ritz in an especially becoming Lelong gown of very dark green velvet. It had a long train faced with taffeta, which gave a particularly effective rustle as she moved. High reverses finished off the decollete in front, giving a military line. These were also lined in taffeta. It buttoned most charmingly on both sides of the waistline with strass buttons on crystal.

This same use of taffeta as lining I noticed on a gown worn by Mme. Alfred Fabre-Luce, wife of the French Senator, at the Crillon. It was in black moire, the train lined in white taffeta. Another charming effect was produced by a Medici-shaped collar of finely pleated lawn, which framed the face in front and then swung down the decollete line of the back.

A classified ad will sell that piece of furniture that is no longer needed.

MENACE OF SAND QUARRY EXCAVATIONS IN AND NEAR MORRISVILLE AROUSES RESIDENTS OF THE SECTION; FINE AREAS HAVE BEEN UNDERMINED

Lives of Youngsters Who Attend Manor Park School, Morrisville, May Be Endangered, is Belief—Some Residents Protect Children by Fences Where Properties Border Sand Pits

MORRISVILLE, Jan. 11.—The menace of the sand quarry excavations in the borough and outside was described by The Trenton Sunday Advertiser recently as follows:

"Twelve or fifteen years ago, farsighted Morrisville residents realized that the time would come when the unrestrained activities of the sand and gravel companies operating in Bucks county would be a menace. What they foresaw has been realized. Today one whole section of the borough has been ruined for residential purposes, property values have declined, tax revenues are consequently lower and worst of all, the safety of 190 children, between the ages of six and nine, is the subject of constant watchfulness by the school authorities.

"These youngsters attend the Manor Park School, which is located directly alongside one of the great sand and gravel excavations. The quarry is larger than a city block, and 60 to 80 feet deep. In the bottom of it is a pool of water, not less than 20 feet deep.

"The situation at the school is so menacing that many parents complain to the supervising principal of the borough, protesting against sending their children to a school where the yard has on several occasions given way and tons of soil have slid down the gravel pit banks.

"On the opposite side of the quarry, directly across from the school are several small homes. The excavation in some cases comes within a few inches of the fence lines in the rear of the properties. Although a number of the houses are for sale, the owners have found it impossible to dispose of them. The garages belonging to these properties are uncomfortably close to the pit edge, particularly in two or three places where deep gulleys are being cut in the banks and where in time other slides may occur.

"Joseph Santis, one of the owner-residents whose property extends to the very edge of the excavation had a rather dreadful experience five years ago. His little daughter, Helen, playing in her yard, fell against the wire fence which gave way with her. She rolled down a part of the bank, but was rescued before she reached the bottom.

"Since then Mr. Santis and other neighbors have erected heavier fences and some have planted hedges as extra protection. But these will be of no avail should a slide carry out part of their backyards.

"When Mr. Santis moved there 11 years ago there were fields from the rear of his house to the school. The tract was a favorite playground for children and no one anticipated that in a brief 10 years a dangerous quarry would replace the playground.

"Despite the fact that the borough of Morrisville was able, about two or three years ago to get control of the situation through passage of a zoning ordinance, residents of the community are in a despairing mood concerning the encroachments and the damage done by the sand concerns.

"Almost the only person who views the matter with any degree of optimism is Mayor Thomas B. Stockham, even though he admits that the condition of Manor Park School is highly undesirable and dangerous. But in his optimism, Mayor Stockham is looking ahead many years to the day when all the lower end of Morrisville, across the Delaware from Trenton's Marine Terminal will be an industrial center. Then, he contends, Trenton and Morrisville will be thriving ports on a harbor teeming with shipping from all parts of the world.

"Other citizens of the town, less farsighted or less visionary, find little that is consoling in that, or even in the restrictions which have been imposed belatedly upon the companies. They cannot appreciate the ruin of a residential community, they do not like the destruction of property value nor the loss of taxes in a time when municipal funds are hard enough to find. Nor do they relish the disfigurement and threatened insecurity of a 10-year-old school which cost them $24,000. As for the great pools of stagnant water, which have been created in the pits from which sand and gravel have been excavated, they brand them as menaces to health, perfect breeding places for mosquitoes, dumps for refuse and a constant source of physical danger to persons and cattle.

School Yard Slid Into Quarry

"The Manor Park School especially presents a problem, that angers many Morrisville residents. Twenty-two years ago, the late William G. Howell, who was one of the community's outstanding figures, gave to the borough what seemed like a perfect tract of land for a school. A small frame elementary school was erected. Then just 10 years ago, in 1924, the school authorities replaced the old building with a larger and quite handsome brick school, housing four grades.

"Some years after Mr. Howell presented the land, sand and gravel interests acquired holdings immediately adjoining. Later they began excavations, which in time assumed huge proportions until there is today a great yawning hole in the ground, extending from Pennsylvania avenue toward the river and from the rear of the school two blocks eastward.

"The banks of the pit are very steep and from time to time small slides have occurred. Six years ago the whole southeast corner of the school yard slid down into the quarry. It remained in that condition until in exasperation, the school board threatened to bring suit against the gravel concern. The company then filled in the dangerous hole in the school playground, at a cost to them, it is understood, of some $300.

"After the fill was made it was discovered that the school yard sloped to a low spot in the center, a condition said to have been created by the filling. In stormy weather a pool was created in the best part of the playground, which consequently became unfit for use. To correct the situation, the school board eventually got permission from the gravel concern to lay a drain emptying into the quarry, to carry off the surface water.

"Before the drain was completed, a lashing rain storm occurred one night, and another section of the school yard slid out. To fill in this hole would have cost the borough several hundred dollars had it not been that at that very time some streets were being paved and the soil was taken to the school yard and dumped into the opening.

"Regardless of whether or not there will be more slides affecting the school property, the fact remains that because of the company's digging, the site of the building is most undesirable. As a protection for the children, to keep them from falling into the pit when at play in the yard, a high wire fence has been erected, enclosing the school property on three sides.

"But outside the fence in places, there is a scant two feet between it and the bank of the quarry. The slope goes almost straight down and the sand and gravel is slippery and shifting. There is always the danger that a child may wander outside the fence as children will, to retrieve a ball, or cap, miss his step and fall down the bank into the pool below.

"Not only did the company owning land adjoining Manor Park School dig to almost the last inch of their own ground, but they dug away two streets to which they had no ownership and began upon a third. That was Cleveland avenue, upon which the school is erected and along the opposite side of which are several homes.

"Discovering one day that the company was beginning to excavate in the roadway of Cleveland avenue, Mr. Cox ordered the workmen to stop. A foreman in charge became indignant and questioned his authority. The former councilman tartly explained that he was on public property to which the company had no right and that he was at the time a special officer.

"Only when the foreman was convinced that Mr. Cox had the law on his side, the councilman reluctantly withdrew. As it is the lower end of Cleveland avenue, near the river has been entirely removed and on a part of the excavated site are buildings of the gravel company.

"It was then that Common Council passed its first ordinance, Mayor Stockham recently explained, by which the boundaries of the sand and gravel interests were definitely fixed within the borough limits. A zoning ordinance, enacted later, along lines upheld by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, establishes the Manor Park section as an industrial community. Under terms of these two measures, Mayor Stockham declares, the companies are prevented from encroaching further in the borough.

"That the companies intend to comply with the law is evidenced, Mayor Stockham asserts, by their desire to sell off the land contiguous to their excavations. But he admits that the market for this land is very limited. About the only use to which it can be put is industrial. But the mayor insists that the industrial need will some day arise, that the harbor development at Trenton and Morrisville is bound to be realized and then the whole Manor Park area will come into its own as an admirable location for manufacturing concerns.

"Mayor Stockham even sees in the hideous holes, deep and threatening, which have been dug by the sand and gravel interests all the way from Tullytown to Morrisville the bed of a canal through which shipments from plants in the Tullytown region may be sent through to the ports of Trenton and Morrisville more quickly and advantageously. The little canal would be four miles long and would save six miles in reaching the deep water of the harbor.

"What has occurred in and around Tullytown and Morrisville may happen elsewhere in Bucks county. Already the gravel interests have found a footing in the lovely New Hope section. The destruction of that region, so beautiful that it attracts visitors from distant States, and made famous by the group of distinguished artists who live and work there, would be an irreparable loss.

"Hard-headed business men scoff at the idea of beauty and historic associations having any monetary value, yet the charm of the New Hope countryside has drawn to it a large colony of artistic and intellectual people. These have purchased homes there, and pay taxes. Other persons, interested in the arts, or preferring to reside in the country rather than in the city, have bought up old Bucks county houses which yielded little tax return, have restored and improved them, and thereby raised the ratables of the district. A sand and gravel project on any scale in or near New Hope would cause many of those residents to move, would cut property values ruthlessly and throw upon the county a large amount of worthless pitted land unfit for any purpose.

"Lower Bucks county where the present excavations are so extensive, has a marked historic value. It is the Pennsbury Manor section, so named because it was here that William Penn built his country home. This old estate, of which many records are extant, is being restored today in part by the Welcome Society and by the State. In time the Pennsbury Manor will be the mecca for pilgrimages by all who love the honor and revere the memory of William Penn, who towers among the men of his period for honor, integrity and fair dealing."

Dr. Clark, Chicago M. D., Has Endorsed New Famous Honey Krushed Wheat Bread

Health Giving Corrective Formula Now Used in Famous Chicago Health School After Analysis By Dr. Clark, Prominent Chicago Radio Health Lecturer.

Dr. Clark, noted for his radio health talks and director of the Chicago Health School, writes: "Your Bell Honey Krushed Wheat Bread which uses honey instead of sugar, is a splendid food for children and adults alike. I would like your formula for this amazing bread so that our baker here can make this bread for our Health School."

"The basic mineral elements robbed from many foods not only help to keep the alkalinity in reserve but their presence in the cell structure is necessary for tonicity. Flabby tissues in the body mean poor function. Poor function or faulty elimination is sure death.

"Foods which can not be digested in the same length of time when mixed together do not pass off in the same length of time. The result is a certain portion of this food ferments, and rots in the intestines. Bell Honey Krushed Wheat Bread assists in the proper elimination of these foods and promotes regularity."

"Are you suffering from constipation, have headaches and lack pep? Stop taking habit-forming drugs that compel you to take more and more.

P. L. CLARK, M. D.

Relieve it Nature's way. Change over to Bell Honey Krushed Wheat Bread which relieves constipation the correct way by supplying your diet with the necessary roughage.

We were positive that an appetizing palatable bread could be baked that would contain ingredients that would cure constipation. We found it in Bell Honey Krushed Wheat Bread formula. Here are two important factors that do the work—whole crushed wheat kernels and pure honey. They are rich in appetite-producing vitamins. Where the digestion has been impaired by un-natural stoppage, they penetrate every crevice of the colon, hunting down the bacteria of decay that causes headaches, sluggish feeling and the inability to work.

Make This Ten-Day Test

Try Bell Honey Krushed Wheat Bread for just ten days. Note how much better you feel, how easy it is to digest. You'll be quick to recognize the important benefits. You'll be delighted with the appetizing flavor.

Be sure to get the Original Bell Honey Krushed Wheat Bread, sliced and cellophane wrapped. It has a liberal extra coating of crushed wheat upon the outer crust.—(Advertisement.)

THE BETTER HOUSING PROGRAM of the Federal Housing Administration has cleared the path for all of us to repair run-down homes, and make good homes better! You've been reading a lot about the plan in the papers. Now put it to work:

How Does It Work?

(1) You own a house or a building. It needs countless things to make it more livable, more rentable, more salable. You need these modernizations—but you haven't quite been able to swing it.
(2) Go to any national bank, state bank or trust company—industrial bank—building and loan association—or finance company—approved by the Federal Housing Administration. Explain what work you want done. State the cost. Ask for a loan of from $100 to $2000 for housing improvement. Sign a loan application. (The loan will then be considered on the basis of the application statement and the "character" of the applicant.) Repayments are to be made in periodic installments. An insurance arrangement between the Government and the approved lending institutions has made this plan possible.

This, in very brief, is the plan. A simple plan—daring in conception, and of tremendous importance to Recovery. It is estimated that one billion six hundred million dollars is necessary to put 16,000,000 buildings back into good condition. The Government has opened the door to this accomplishment.

BETTER HOUSING COMMITTEE MEETS TONIGHT TO HEAR OUTLINE OF PLANS TO AID IMPROVING OF PROPERTY

An important meeting will be held tonight to complete arrangements and plans for the Bristol Better Housing Campaign that will be started next week, according to Chauncey E. Stoneback, chairman of the local committee, who has called the meeting for eight o'clock in the Elks Home.

Horace Palmer, South Langhorne, county chairman, will outline the housing plan and instruct the committee on how the Better Housing Act will help those who need financial assistance to make repairs or modernize their homes.

The committee appointed to form the local organization consists of Chauncey E. Stoneback, Jr., chairman; Jacob C. Schmidt, Jr., Arthur Seyfert, Robert C. Crowell, John H. Wisner, Frank Voit, James H.

Brooks, Edward Finnegan, Arthur P. Brady, Hugh B. Eastburn, C. Burnley White, C. S. Wetherill, Jr., Lester B.

FIND MATERIALS' COST IS FAVORABLE

San Diego Survey Shows An Interesting Comparison in Building

Building material prices are favorable to new construction or repairs, reconditioning, and remodeling, according to the results of an exhaustive survey just completed by the Merchants Central Credit Association of San Diego, Calif.

In an interesting comparison, the Association shows that the present-day cost of a five-room bungalow is, by way of comparison, 17 per cent. below the prevailing figure in 1926, which the Federal Housing Administration says is reasonable and desirable. Records compiled in the survey show the 1926 cost of a bungalow to be $632.45 as against $523.25 during 1934.

"The Administration is concerned primarily with price stabilization," says the report. "Industry and labor are very definitely concerned with price and wage stabilization."

"An examination of current building material price schedules as compared to prices in effect during 1926 and for all the years subsequent to 1926 reveals some interesting facts."

"A five-room bungalow has been constructed in this trade area from identical plans each year since 1926 and accurate records have been kept as to the actual building costs for this residence. The lumber bill includes 9,300 feet of fir dimension lumber, redwood siding, cedar shingles, redwood exterior finish, fir interior finish, hardwood flooring and sash and doors. There are 24 door and window openings."

The 1926 cost was $632.45, compared with the average selling price of this material for the entire 15-year period of $624. Contrasting present-day prices with those of 1926 the costs are 17 per cent. lower than the 1926 prices.

Housing Hints

Tips on How and What to Improve

Coloring Base Shoe

The base shoe, or quarter round, at the bottom of the baseboard in each room is sometimes finished the same color as the floor. Especially is this true when the trim is white or very light colored, because, when the floor is darker than the trim, the darker shoe base will not so easily show soiled marks.

Replace Broken Grates

Replace broken or warped grate bars in the boiler before winter temperatures begin. Defective grate bars cause a loss of fuel and make accurate control of combustion very difficult.

BENSALEM HIGH TEAM WINS FROM NEWTOWN

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Jan. 11.—A spirited quintet from Bensalem High School defeated the Newtown five, 20-16, on Tuesday evening on the Newtown floor.

Rigby, Henderson and Malone shared the honors for Bensalem with 6 points each. Morris started for Newtown with four double deaters and two free shots.

The Newtown five roll the score up to 9-7 at the half. But Bensalem came back at the beginning of the second half and rolled on to victory.

In the preliminary game the Newtown J. V.'s defeated the Bensalem J. V.'s, 25-24 in a thrilling extra period game.

On Friday the Bensalem five meet the strong Southampton team on the Southampton floor.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By ANN PAGE

PRICES on butter, eggs and meat have continued to rise with no prospect of lowering with the probable exception of eggs, which should be plentiful within two to three weeks.

Many vegetables are cheap or moderately priced, particularly white potatoes and other underground vegetables. Several varieties of cabbage, cauliflower, broccoli, iceberg, Boston and romaine lettuce, celery and various greens help to cover up the scarcity and high prices of string beans and spinach.

Grapefruit are plentiful and cheap having largely escaped cold damage. Large size eating apples predominate at present. Banana prices change little from month to month and they together with the citrus fruits and apples are the chief winter standbys.

Here are three menus made up from seasonal foods at different price levels:

ELKS' BOWLERS GET OFF TO A GOOD START

In the Bristol League the Elks got off to a good start, winning 4 points from the B. B. C., Sam Pearson crashing the map for a single of 245 and a total of 619, with Yeagle getting 549 for B. B. C.

In the American League Harriman started off with something unusual in bowling around these parts. They signed up one of Bristol's leading women bowlers, Carrie Keers, and of the 2 teams only one man rolled a better score. Carrie hit 510 for a total and a high game of 193. Wichser, hitting 521 for the Elks, beat her by 11 pins. Harriman took all 4 points.

In the National League, K. of C. won all 4 points from the Elks, Joe Wilkinson being the high man with a total of 516 for K. of C. and Schmidt 496 for the Elks.

HOLLYWOOD.—When you envy the flying feet of Fred Astaire, don't think that perfection of rhythm comes without effort. The screen's sensational new dancing star practices six hours almost every day. He was 60 hours learning "The Carioca" and three whole weeks polishing up "The Continental". The "Night and Day" number in "The Gay Divorcee" was the easiest because he had done it on the stage.

For his new picture, "Roberta", the star spent seven weeks learning the number "Hard to Handle", and three weeks and two days on "I Won't Dance". He still has to perfect "Smoke Gets Into Your Eyes".

Astaire did his regular six hours of practice on Christmas day and he put another six hours in on New Year's.

Cameraman Clyde De Vinna, of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, is one of the unsung humanitarians of Hollywood.

His unusual hobby, disclosed only recently, is to bring children from all over the world to live in his Hollywood home and to be educated at his expense.

He now has an international family of four and expects another within a short time.

Two of his proteges are Polynesian girls, Antonina and Leonne Rainbridge, aged 19 and 18. De Vinna first met the father of the girls, George Rainbridge, a merchant of Papeete, Tahiti, in 1924, through his short wave radio set. Weekly, the two would converse over the air. Four years ago, the father sent the girls to Mr. and Mrs. De Vinna for their education. They speak English, French and Polynesian fluently. Both are pretty and both are musical. They have played bit parts in pictures and probably will get roles in M. G. M.'s forthcoming film, "Typee".

Another of De Vinna's proteges is Clarence Kumalae, a 22-year-old Hawaiian boy, who has been living in the cameraman's home for six years. During the baseball season, young Kumalae pitches for the Omaha Packers.

The fourth protege is Ryoko Matsui, De Vinna, a 21-year-old Japanese boy, who has been with the De Vinna's for 11 years. Both these boys graduated with honors from the Urban Military academy here.

And soon, De Vinna expects to take Alfredo Cermida, 15-year-old Cuban youth, into his home.

De Vinna is probably the most traveled cameraman in Hollywood. He photographed "Trader Horn" in Africa, "White Shadows of the South Seas" in Tahiti and "Eskimo" in the far north.

The dramatic breaks for newcomers to pictures are not confined to human beings. William Wellman tried for weeks to find the right dog to play "Buck" in Jack London's "Call of the Wild".

Buck is one of the best known dog characters in fiction and he had to be, just right.

Well, he is finally selected and he is a year-and-a-half old St. Bernard, which has never worked in a picture before. The dog's owner, Carl Spitz, trained him for the job in two weeks time.

Why will Hollywood never accept Professor Emerson Venable's plan (he's Evelyn's dad) to settle the ills of the world?

KNICK-KNACKS.—

It's a nip and tuck race to see whether "Clive of India" or "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer" gets the first crack at the British screen.

Producers of both the pictures expect to get their money back from showings in England and her colonies. Odds are that "Clive of India" will be the first released, because Paramount is still scoring "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer". The preview raves on this film are the loudest in years. . . . The Lowell Sherman estate very likely will face a suit from an ex-wife. . . . Bob Fairbanks (he's Doug's brother) is said to have struck it rich on a gold holding. . . . The film colony is investing heavily in California's new rush. . . . Recent opponents have been using Man Mountain Dean out of the ring, but the bearded wrestler still keeps his role at M. G. M. And he won out about wearing spats and a high hat.

LONDON.—(INS)—A hen which lays blue eggs is on exhibition at a poultry show here. The bird is of a new breed, never before exhibited in Europe. It is, experts explained, an Araucanas, raised by the natives of Araucania, South America.
